Concise revision guide for Junior Certificate Business Studies covering both the Higher and Ordinary Level courses, with full exam breakdown and analysis of past exam papers to help maximise your marks. From Testing to Assessment: English as an International Language provides a critical review of conventional and alternative approaches to the assessment of English literacy skills in various parts of the world. It presents empirical studies conducted in three major settings: in countries such as Japan and Brazil where English functions as the language of international commerce; in multilingual countries such as Nigeria and Zimbabwe where English is the national language of education and government; and in such countries as Canada, the United Kingdom and the United States where English is the dominant language. The book opens with a discussion of language assessment in relation to debates about the nature of literacy; it concludes with a discussion of policy implications, which is grounded in literacy theory as well as in practical constraints such as available human and material resources.

In the context of outcomes-based school governance, statewide exit exams are often expected to have a positive effect on student achievements if schools and teachers use the performance feedback from the exams for school, instructional, and professional development. However, very little is known about whether the exams are used for development at all and how this is affected by factors in the exam system and organizational aspects of schools. In a comparison of Finland, Ireland, and the Netherlands, the study therefore investigates how different exam systems and their functions, the conditions at school level, and the use of the exams for school and classroom development are associated. The study uses expert interviews and a questionnaire survey with principals and teachers. The role statewide exit exams can play in education systems is analyzed from a governance perspective and a school development perspective and discussed with an international comparative view. Esther Dominique Klein, born in 1982, Dr. phil., is research assistant at the Faculty of Educational Sciences of the University of Duisburg-Essen. Her main research interests lie in the areas of school system and school development research and international comparative education.

These notes treat of the Leaving Certificate Higher Level Economics course. The coverage is as short and concise as possible to aid the student's learning. It was necessary to omit certain topics such as population economics and development, however all omissions concern material which is not central to the course or an understanding of economics. As such, these notes form the minimum course of economics required to get an A1 in the Irish Leaving Certificate, or at least to do very well. It is important to note that these notes should be utilised in conjunction with past papers and past marking schemes in order to maximise examination performance.

These notes treat of the Leaving Certificate Physics course. Only the most important parts of any topic are included; as such, these notes form 'the minimum you need to know to get an A1'. Clear diagrams are included to illustrate important material in the text, especially in Light 1: Geometrical Optics with its inherently graphical nature. It is important to note that significant emphasis is placed on the theoretical part of the syllabus: each student's own experiment copybook should be their keystone for that aspect of the course. However, for the sake of completeness appendix B forms a concise overview of the mandatory experiments, with particular emphasis on those salient points which frequently crop up in exams. Moreover, the Applied Electricity option has been omitted since seldom do students warm to it, and indeed very few teachers cover it; the particle physics option is included instead in the Modern Physics section.

In the three volumes of Major Trends in Theoretical and Applied Linguistics, the editors guide the reader through a well-selected compendium of works, presenting a fresh look at contemporary linguistics. Specialists will find chapters that contribute to their fields of interest, and the three-volume collection will provide useful reading for anyone interested in linguistics. The first volume explores theoretical issues dealing with phonetics-phonology and syntax-semantics-morphology. Volume two is organized into three main sections that examine interdisciplinary linguistics: discourse analysis, gender and lexicography; language acquisition, and language disorders. Finally, volume three focuses on applied linguistics - both language teaching/ learning and education.

This book explores how history teaching can support conflict reduction in deeply divided societies. Using Northern Ireland as its case study, the work contributes to how people think about the identity-based conflict that surrounds them and involves them. It also acts as a manual for those who wish to undertake projects to change attitudes about history in post-conflict societies.
